Ddddddd Numb. 3833.

The Daily Courant.

Friday, February 5. 1714.

Part of the Preamble, and Part of the Concluſion of the Pope's Bull condemning Father Queſnel's Book, together with ſome of the 101 Propoſitions condemned by the ſaid Bull.

CLEMENT Biſhop, Servant of the Servants of God.

To all the Faithful of Chriſt, Greeting and Apoſtolical Benediction.

THE only begotten Son of God, become the Son of Man for ours and the Salvation of the whole World, whilſt he inſtructed his Diſciples in the Doctrine of Truth, and in the Apoſtles taught his whole Church, ordering the preſent, and providing for things to come, delivered to us this moſt excellent and moſt wholeſom Document, to beware of falſe Prophets, who come to us in Sheep's Cloathing: By which Name he chiefly points out to us, thoſe lying Teachers, thoſe deceitful Impoſtors, who under the ſpecious Colour of Piety, ſecretly inſtilling wicked Doctrine, by the fair appearance of a ſaintly outſide, introduce pernicious Sects: And that they may with leſs ſuſpicion win upon the unwary, laying by, in a manner, the Wolf's Skin, and covering themſelves with Sentences of the Divine Law, as a kind of Sheep's Cloathing, they wickedly abuſe the Words of the Holy Scriptures, and even thoſe of the New Teſtament, which they many ways falſify, to their own and others Perdition; being taught by the Example and Inſtruction of the old Father of Lies, their own Parent, that there is no way ſo proper to deceive by, as to pretend to the Authority of the Divine Word, when they would put their wicked Errours upon us.

Forewarned by this truly Divine Admonition, when we underſtood to our great Grief, that a certain Book, printed ſome time ago in French in ſeveral Volumes, under the Title of The New Teſtament in French, with Moral Reflections upon each Verſe, &c. At Paris 1699. And otherwiſe: An Abridgment of the Moral of the Goſpel, of the Acts of the Apoſtles, the Epiſtles of St. Paul, the Canonical Epiſtles, and the Apocalypſe: Or, Chriſtian Thoughts upon the Text of theſe Sacred Books, &c. At Paris 1693, and 1694, was ſtill looked upon by ſeveral as free from all Errours; was every where put into the Hands of the Faithful, and by the unwearied Pains of reſtleſs Spirits, always attempting ſomething new, was induſtriouſly and vigorouſly diſperſed all over, and even turned into Latin, that the Contagion might be conveyed into all Nations, and to all People; notwithſtanding it had been already condemned by us, as really containing Errours and unſound Doctrine, every where mixed with Catholick Truths: We were ſenſibly afflicted to ſee the Flock of Chriſt committed to our Charge, thus ſtep by ſtep ſeduced, and led away to Perdition. Whereupon, ſtirred up, as well with our own Paſtoral Concern, as with the frequent Complaints of the zealous true Believers; but moſtly with Letters and Petitions of ſeveral of our venerable Brethren, eſpecially the Biſhops of France, we have reſolved to make uſe of a more effectual Remedy, in order to put a ſtop to the Courſe of this ſpreading Contagion, which may otherwiſe in time increaſe to an Extremity. —— &c.

Prop. 79. 'Tis profitable and neceſſary in all times, all places, and for all ſorts of Perſons, to ſtudy and know the Spirit, Pity, and Myſteries of the holy Scripture.

80. The reading of the holy Scripture is for all.

81. The ſacred obſcurity of the word of God is no reaſon for the Laity to diſpenſe with themſelves from reading it.

82. The Lord's Day muſt be ſanctified by Chriſtians, with the reading of pious Books, and above all, of the holy Scriptures. 'Tis prejudicial to think of withdrawing a Chriſtian from the reading hereof.

83. It is an Illuſion to perſwade ones ſelf, that the Knowledge of the Myſteries of Religion, muſt not be imparted to Women by the reading of the ſacred Books. The abuſe of Scripture and Hereſies are not ſprung from the Simplicity of Women, but from the proud Knowledge of Men.

84. To ſnatch the New Teſtament out of the Hands of Chriſtians, or to keep it ſhut unto them, by depriving them of the Means of underſtanding it, is to ſhut unto them the Mouth of Chriſt.

85. To forbid Chriſtians the reading of the holy Scripture, eſpecially of the Goſpel, is to forbid the uſe of Light to the Children of Light, and to make them ſuffer a ſort of Excommunication.

94. Nothing gives a worſe Opinion of the Church to her Enemies, than to ſee therein the practice of dominering over the Faith of Believers, and the fomenting of Diviſions, for things which prejudice neither Faith nor Manners.

We do by this our unalterable Conſtitution declare, condemn and reject reſpectively, all and every one of the Propoſions aforeſaid, as falſe, captious, ſounding ill in, and offenſive to pious Ears; ſcandalous, pernicious, raſh, injurious to the Church and her Practice, contumelious, not only to the Church, but alſo to the State; ſeditious, wicked, blaſphemous, ſuſpected of Hereſy, and favouring of Hereſy, and alſo favouring Hereticks, Hereſies and Schiſm too, erroneous, bordering on Hereſy, often condemned, and in fine, alſo Heretical, and notoriouſly reviving ſeveral Hereſies.

Commanding all the Faithful of both Sexes, that they preſume not to hold, teach, or preach otherwiſe, concerning theſe Propoſitions, than is contained in this ſame our Conſtitution: Inſomuch that whoſoever ſhall teach, defend, publiſh them, or any of them, joyntly or ſeverally; or ſhall treat of them, even by way of Diſpute, publickly or privately, (unleſs to impugn them) ſhall, ipſo facto, without any other Declaration, incur the Church Cenſures, and be obnoxious to the other Penalties appointed by the Law againſt ſuch Delinquents.

We alſo do forbid and condemn all and every Book, or Pamphlet, as well Written as Printed, or that ſhall be Printed (which God forbid) in defence of this Book: And we likewiſe prohibit and forbid all and every one of the Faithful, the reading, tranſcribing, keeping and uſe of thoſe Books, under the pain of Excommunication to be incurred, ipſo facto.
